x)  January 27: Community Based Health Research Grants (Vancouver Foundation)

Community-based Health Research is an approach to research in which community members affected by the condition or issue under study are active participants in each stage of the work — from conception and design of a plan of action, implementation, analysis, to the dissemination of results and conclusions.

This approach requires that community voices are heard in asking the critical questions, documenting and interpreting the findings, and creating the systemic change in local, provincial, and national policies that will respond to the findings.

Deadline: January 27

y)  January 27: Health and Social Development (Vancouver Foundation)

Healthy individuals make for strong communities. But for some members of our community it can be a struggle just to meet basic needs. Vancouver Foundation provides grants in the area of Health and Social Development to ease the effects of poverty, and help citizens live healthier, more productive lives. From helping people develop appropriate skills, to encouraging healthy lifestyles or engaging people who are marginalized, these grants build stronger communities from the ground up.

Deadline: January 27

z) February 1: EXTRA Fellowship Program (CHSRF)

Description: As one of CHSRF's flagship programs, the Executive Training for Research Application (EXTRA) program develops capacity and leadership to optimize the use of research evidence in managing Canadian healthcare organizations. EXTRA gives health system managers across Canada the skills to better use research in their daily work, as a way to increase evidence-informed decision-making in the health system.

The EXTRA program targets health service professionals in senior management positions - nurse executives, physician executives, and other health administration executives.
